MARCH OF CROSS THROUGH SOUTHWESTERN DESERT.

50 friars, serving 90 Indian communities, with a Christianized Indian population of 60,000. Before 1680, the number of churches had been increased to 34.

Considering the difficulties by which they were beset, this record represents a story of achievement that has never been surpassed in the whole history of missionary enterprise, ancient or modern. Many of these early mission churches were built of stone, and some were of enormous size. All were constructed by native labor, under the spur of the tireless energy of the padres, whose zeal for the glory of God perhaps rendered them forgetful of the frailty of human bone and muscle. It is, perhaps, not to be wondered at the Indians sometimes wearied of the apparently endless task of piling up huge treasure before they were slain, and the ruins of the ancient church there have been sadly damaged by seekers after buried gold.

In all, about 400 persons were massacred on the red tenth of August, 1680, including 21 priests. When Pope's forces reached the neighborhood of Santa Fe, the Pueblo Napoleon sent a messenger into the city to say that he and his followers had killed God and the Virgin Mary, and that they would kill all the Spaniards unless they immediately left the country. Nevertheless, they elected to stay; but after a siege of five days duration when were glad to get away, making their way South to Santo Domingo, where they found the bodies of three padres who had been slain. Continuing down the Rio Grande to Isleta, they found that place abandoned; and proceeded on to El Paso—where they were safe.

Pope immediately ordered the destruction of all crosses, paintings and site as the cathedral. The great adobe church that is still in use at Isleta was built in 1635, and is a notable monument of missionary zeal two and three quarter centuries ago. The old church at Pecos was built in 1617, but its red walls are gradually becoming reincorporated with the dust of the valley. At Nambé may be seen the old bell, the decaying timbers and portions of the walls of the mission built there in 1647, and in Picuris are the ruins of the oldest mission in the far North, built in 1632. At Jemez are the venerable remains of a great church erected in 1626; and far to the East, almost on the edge of the great plains, are what Lummis describes as the grandest Caucasian ruins in America—the great stone walls of the churches of Abo, Tenabo and Tabira (some times incorrectly called the Gran Quivira). Among the old churches, whose dates of erection are uncertain, but which are ancient enough to merit more than passing notice from all who love to dwell upon memorials of the heroic past of the Southwest, are those of Santa Cruz, Ojo Caliente, San Felipe de Neri at Albuquerque and Trampas—the last named one of the most picturesque of the smaller churches of New Mexico. Taken all in all, it will be admitted by the most cursory observer than the Franciscan fathers of two or three centuries ago left a seal upon "the land of sage" that even the shifting desert sands of ages will not readily efface.

LONGEST SINGLE WIRE TELEPHONE

Line Reaches From Belen to Texico, Entire Length of Eastern Railway of New Mexico.

Belen, N. M., Feb. 8.—The Eastern Railway of New Mexico is using from the office of Chief Engineer J. V. Keys the longest single wire telephone in use in the United States. Though the telephone line reaches from Belen to Texico and is two hundred and fifty miles in length and is only a ground circuit, a conversation can be clearly heard and understood the entire distance. The line is used by the construction company for transmitting train orders and superintending construction work.

Belen farmers are arranging to plant a large acreage of sugar beets and cantaloupes this coming spring. It is believed that the soil here is well adapted to such crops. The Belen Commercial Club is fostering this test crop and has appointed a committee of which Charles Reinken is secretary to make inquiries of beet growers as to the best variety of beets for the soil of this part of the Rio Grande valley. Several hundred acres will be planted here this year as an experimental crop.

The weak nerves, not the organs themselves, need this help. This explains why Dr. Shoop's Restorative, has, and is promptly helping so many sick ones. It goes direct to the cause of these diseases. Mission Church at Santa Cruz.

temples to the insatiable White God. The most obvious way of obtaining relief appeared to be to kill the priests, who had been baptized in the Christian faith must be cleansed by the communities indulged in the luxury of soap weed and water, and did everything possible to obliterate all traces that the Spaniards had ever been in the country. Every church was ordered destroyed, and the use of the hated language of the aliens was forbidden. From the view-point of the Twentieth Century, the most serious and irreparable loss of all was due to the utter destruction of all records in Northern New Mexico, only the friar the churches and elsewhere, making at Cochiti, those at Santa Fe, and one at Zuni, escaped with their lives. Padre Jesus Morador, of Jemez, is said to have been taken from bed, tied naked on a hog's back, paraded and through the village, and then himself ridden and spurred until death gave him welcome relief. The padres of the pueblos were stoned to death, and those of other pueblos were tortured and killed in whatever way savage caprice dictated. There is a legend that the original walls are doubtless those of the first church built in Santa Fe occupied the same
